PAUL E. BROWN, Coach & General Manager

On a hot August afternoon in the summer of 1922 an automobile, bearing a distraught father and a determined 14-year-old high school youngster, wheeled around Turkeyfoot Lake, near Massillon, Ohio, where the Massillon High Tigers had opened their football camp.

The youngster was small, weighing little more than 100 pounds, but football was in his blood. His father knew he was too light for the Massillon team, but in desperation drove him to the camp, strode up to Coach Dave Stewart and cried out: "Take him, if for nothing more than a water boy. He's driving us crazy at home."

There was an understanding wink from the wise old coach and the youngster was issued a uniform. Thus was launched one of the most successful careers in football the game has ever known.

The youngster was Paul E. Brown and now Brown has been heard to say: "Dave Stewart was wonderful. He welcomed me to the camp, gave me a love of football and of winning. He was a bachelor at that time and he became sort of a football father to me."

By the time Brown was a junior in high school he had grown up to a strapping 130 pounds and became a smart quarterback for the Massillon Tigers in his last two years in high school. He played on teams that won nearly all of their games and he's been winning ever since. As a senior, his mind was so close to Stewart's the coach even let him decide on player substitutions.

Brown was born in Norwalk, Ohio, on September 7, 1908, but his family moved to Massillon when he was 12. After his high school days, Paul enrolled at Ohio State University, but, realizing his weight would be a severe handicap in Big Ten football, he transferred to Miami University of Ohio.

There he also played quarterback for two years and was regarded as an above average passer and a good runner.

After graduating from Miami, Brown coached for two years at Severn, a preparatory school for the U. S. Naval Academy. One of his proteges there was the famous Slade Cutter, now the Academy's director of athletics.

In 1932, Brown returned to Massillon as a high school football and basketball coach. The Tigers had been in the athletic doldrums, but Brown produced a good team in his first season, winning six, losing three and tying one. Next year they won eight and dropped two and in 1934 Massillon won all but one of 10 contests. During the next six years Brown's teams played 60 games, winning 58, dropping one and tying one. They annexed six straight state championships. In Brown's nine seasons at Massillon, the Tigers scored 3,202 points to their opponents' 339. The 1940 Massillon machine, judged by Brown to be his best there, tallied 447 points to the enemy's six.

Brown also produced winning teams in basketball, several times leading his teams into the state tournament finals.

When Brown first came to Massillon, the capacity of the school's stadium was 5,000. In 1938 a new stadium seating 21,000 was erected and wasn't large enough. In 1940 Massillon played before 175,000 fans including 161,000 at 8 home contests. Annually Massillon outdrew every college in the state with the exception of Ohio State. Following a vigorous campaign by the Ohio State high school coaches' association Brown was signed as the Ohio State mentor in 1941, replacing Francis Schmidt. In his first season the Buckeyes won six, lost one and tied one. In 1942, the Bucks were acclaimed Big Ten and national collegiate kings as they compiled a record of nine victories and one loss.

The 1943 squad, which could have been one of the mightiest grid machines in college history, was wrecked when all the 1942 stars and a great freshman roster were called into the armed services. Playing against teams which were loaded with naval trainees, the 1943 Buckeyes gave Brown his first losing season as a coach.

In 1944 Brown himself enlisted in the Navy. He was commissioned a lieutenant and appointed athletic officer at Great Lakes where he coached football. His 1944 Sailors won nine, lost two and tied one. The 1945 outfit, loaded with green youngsters, got off to a bad start, losing three and tying one in its first four starts. However, the team under Brown's guidance came along nicely to win its last six in a row including a 39 to 7 victory over Notre Dame for 1945's greatest grid upset.

It was during the coach's navy days that a new professional football league was organized, the All-America Conference. Cleveland was granted a franchise and Brown was lured away from the Ohio State campus, to which he was expected to return at the end of the war, to take the position of general manager and head coach.

Brown's break from intercollegiate football to a team that was merely in the organizational state was called "the most astonishing football story in many years" in the reports of his signing.

But it was typical of Brown, when interviewed on the move, to comment: "You know me; I'll try to build a football dynasty in Cleveland."

The records reveal that Brown already has achieved this goal. In the comparatively short span of 14 years he has developed the Cleveland Browns into one of the most amazingly successful organizations in the history of sports. In 14 seasons playing in two leagues, the Browns only three times failed to finish out of first place in their division and seven times have captured a league championship . . .

four in the old All-America and three in the National League, which they entered in 1950.

Though Brown still had a year to serve in the navy following his appointment to the huge organization task of this new Cleveland sports venture, he set the machine in motion immediately.

In his first year in the pro ranks, Brown molded a mixture of professional veterans and inexperienced college kids into the first All-America Conference Championship team. He repeated again in 1947, and in 1948 piloted his club to an undefeated season, establishing an all-time major league mark of 15 victories and winning his third consecutive title. 1949 brought another championship to Cleveland, his Browns losing but a single game while winning nine and tying two; then taking the first round play-off game with Buffalo by a 31-21 score and the championship game with the San Francisco 49ers, 21-7. Up to the time the 49ers defeated them in 1949 his great squad had continued its streak to 29 games without a setback. Paralleling his Massillon experiences, even the huge Cleveland Municipal Stadium with its 78,207 permanent seats had been taxed beyond its capacity time and again. 82,769 fans streamed through its gates to witness the Browns-San Francisco contest in 1948.

1950 marked his debut into the National Football League where his club continued its winning ways—piling up 310 points against opponents 144 for a record of 10 wins and 2 losses which left them in a tie for the American Conference title with the New York Giants. In the play-off his club beat the New Yorkers 8 to 3, and then went on to win the football championship of the world by defeating the Los Angeles Rams in a sizzler on a very cold December 24th day, 30-28.

The 1951 season was one of his most successful, winning 11 games and losing one to win the American Conference championship. However, this was little balm for the loss of the world title to the Los Angeles Rams—the first championship lost by a Brown team since entering the pro ranks in 1946.

In 1952 and 1953 his Browns again won the league's Eastern Conference crown only to lose the world title to the Detroit Lions.

In 1954, though the squad was hard hit by losses through military service and player retirements, Paul brought his team around slowly and ended the season by regaining the National League championship with a 56-10 triumph over the Lions. They made it two titles in a row in 1955, this team beating the Los Angeles Rams for the championship.

The 1956 season marked his second with a losing record, the Browns winning five and losing seven.

The 1957 campaign undoubtedly will go down as one of the most successful of all time for Brown. Following the disastrous 1956 season, Brown undertook a major rebuilding job. When training camp opened, only 22 veterans were on hand, and, with 13 rookies aboard when the regular season got underway, the Browns got away to a four-game winning streak and stayed on top of the eastern division race all the way, regaining the division title and earning the right to play the Detroit Lions for the world title.

After a fast start in 1958, the Browns ended in a tie with New York for the eastern division title, then lost in the playoff. In 1959 they finished in a tie for second with the Philadelphia Eagles.

If there was to be a reason given for Brown's tremendous success it probably would be briefly stated that he is a great organizer and that one of his top secrets is his handling of men. This has been true in every coaching job he has held.

With the Browns, he uses adult subtlety rather than rah-rah emotionalism. He needles his players with just the right touch. An excellent example of this came the night the Browns were to play the Philadelphia Eagles in their first start in the National League. The players were seated around the dinner table for the pregame meal. Brown suddenly spoke up and commented: "Just think of it, you members of the defensive unit, tonight you will have a chance to touch the great Steve Van Buren." The Eagles scored only one touchdown.

There apparently has been only one time when Brown was unsure of himself. That was in 1948. The All-America Conference and pro football in general appeared to be on shaky ground. Offers to coach college teams wherever a vacancy existed were coming to Brown daily and he was tempted.

But he stayed with the pros and he'll never regret it.

Brown has a tremendous will to win and if you ask him where he got it his face will light up and he'll tell you it came from his mother.

"She loves games," Paul has said. "She always has. You should see her play bridge. She used to play checkers and cards with me and everyone in the whole family played to win."

Brown wears business clothes most of the time, usually in blended shades of brown. He stands five feet, 11 inches, and his weight is around 160. You might spot him in a crowd as a well established professional man. Probably a lawyer, for that is what he had in mind after graduation from college. He did, in fact, start to law school.

Paul is married and he and his wife, Katy, have three sons. Robin, a 1953 graduate of Miami (Florida) University, is married and resides in Conway, Ark., where he has a tube fabricating plant., with his wife and two children. Mike graduated from Dartmouth in June of 1957 and from the Harvard University law school in 1960. As the Dartmouth quarterback in 1956, Mike set a new school scoring record. The youngest son, Peter is a high school senior, playing football at University School in Cleveland.

Away from football, Paul's greatest relaxation comes from playing golf. He is a 10-handicapper. He also enjoys cards, the theater and music.

PAUL O. BIXLER, End Coach and Personnel Scout

Paul Bixler brought a wealth of coaching experience into his first assignment in professional football, that of end coach and chief scout. Bixler has been in the business for 30 years, both as head coach and assistant, including three seasons in which he was associated with Paul Brown as an aide at Ohio State.

Bixler is a native Ohioan and came back to his home territory six years ago after coaching in the East for the previous seven seasons, having served at Colgate as head coach for five years and at the University of Pennsylvania as an assistant two years.

In joining the Browns when Blanton Collier resigned to accept the head coach berth at the University of Kentucky, Bixler at last accepted a position first offered him when the Browns were organized. At that time Bixler was an assistant coach at Ohio State, but declined Brown's offer to become the Bucks' head mentor in the unusual switch of coaches that saw Carroll Widdoes step down from the top spot to that of an aide.

Brown considered it fortunate to have a man of Bixler's qualifications available when he needed a new coach. Having worked under Brown previously, Bixler was acquainted with the head coach's system. Bixler was shifted to the personnel scouting assignment last winter.

Bixler was a high school athletic star at Louisville (Ohio) High School, near Canton, and then enrolled at Mt. Union College, where he confined his athletic activity to football, captaining his team in his senior year.

He was graduated from Mt. Union in 1929, and started coaching at Canton Central Junior High School, moving to McKinley High School in Canton two years later as assistant to Jimmy Aiken. It was while Bixler was at Canton McKinley and the Bulldogs were annual opponents of Brown's Massillon High School team that the two coaches first met.

When Aiken moved to Akron University in 1936, Bixler went along as an assistant in football and head basketball coach, remaining until the spring of 1939 when he became head basketball coach at Colgate. He led the Colgate cagers two seasons, then was appointed as assistant at Ohio State when Brown was named the Buckeyes' head mentor in the spring of 1941.

Bixler stayed at Ohio State six years, three as an assistant to Brown, two as Widdoes' assistant and one year as head coach. He then returned to Colgate as head football coach, a post he held until moving to Pennsylvania.

Bixler is married and is the father of six children. One of his sons, Jack, played high school football at Cathedral Latin.

HOWARD BRINKER, Backfield Coach

After two seasons as the Browns' end coach and chief scout, Brinker in 1954 shifted his attention to the backfield and defense.

"Brink" first became associated with Paul Brown when the Cleveland coach was shaping the athletic dynasty at Massillon, Ohio.

A native of Canal Fulton, Brinker spent most of his life in Massillon until his graduation from Washington High School in 1932. That year, incidentally, was Brown's first year of coaching at Massillon. "Brink" entered Miami University where he was an outstanding center for three years. Next to him, at guard, was Fritz Heisler, Brown guard and center coach. Brinker still carries a curve in his nose which he received in a game against Cincinnati when he met

Ray Nolting head-on while doing a linebacking job on him.

Brinker graduated from the Oxford, Ohio school in 1939. The next two football seasons he served in Massillon. In 1941 he moved to Steubenville as line coach, succeeding to the head coaching position the following year. He remained at this position in Steubenville, winning 24 and losing 12 before his appointment to the Ohio University staff in 1949.

Taking charge of the Bobcat line in the fall of that year, the Ohioans soon won recognition for their strong defensive record.

There was a 39 month time-out when Brinker went into the United States Infantry, serving a year in Japan.

An astute student of football, Brinker holds a master's degree in Physical Education.

Married, he makes his home in Shaker Heights, with his wife Mary. They have two sons.

RICHARD EVANS, Defensive Line Coach

Richard Evans is starting his second year on the Cleveland Browns' staff and has a broad background in professional football as a player and coach.

Evans broke into athletics at DePaul Academy in Chicago, where he was born May 31, 1918, then played both football and basketball at Iowa. He was a star end on the 1939 Iowa team known as "Iron Men" because substitutions seldom were made.

After playing in the College All-Star Game at Chicago in 1940, Evans entered pro football as a player with the Green Bay Packers and had a four-year playing career, two each with the Packers and Cardinals. Entering the service at the end of the 1943 pro season, Dick played with the mighty 1944 El Toro marine eleven, then coached the Santa Barbara Marines the following year.

Following his release from the service, Evans was an assistant coach at Long Beach City College in 1946, then served as an assistant at Nevada from 1947 through 1950 and was an assistant at Loyola of Los Angeles in 1951. He returned to pro football as a coach with the Chicago Cardinals in 1952, re-entered the service in 1953 and coached the San Diego Navy eleven in 1953 and the Naval Station team at Itsugi, Japan in 1954.

In 1955 he became an assistant to Joe Kuharich at Washington and when Kuharich transferred to Notre Dame in 1959, Evans went along as line coach.

Dick and his wife, Miriam, have three children, Nile 12, Martin 11, and Sally Lou 5, Nile was named after Dick's late great Iowa teammate, Nile Kinnick, his college roommate.

FRITZ HEISLER, Guard Coach

When Paul Brown greeted his first squad of candidates at Massillon High School in the autumn of 1932, a 135-pound youngster named Fritz Heisler was trying out for the team. The boy clinched a first string berth on the club and was a regular on the 1933 eleven which was the first of Massillon's super teams.

Heisler, born in Massillon on May 18, 1915, had known Brown long before he reached high school. When Brown was quarterbacking Massillon's team, Heisler as a grade pupil used to watch the team's practice sessions daily. Always interested in the technical phases of the game, Heisler would ask Brown all sorts of questions about football.

From Massillon, Heisler went to Miami University where he won three football letters. Although weighing only 155, he held down a guard position and was chosen on several of the All-Ohio squads. At Miami, Heisler majored in physical education with the view of coaching.

Immediately after Heisler graduated in 1938, he was named a coaching assistant by Brown, then still at Massillon. When Brown moved to Ohio State in 1941, he took Heisler along as freshman football coach. On the Buckeyes' 1942 national championship team were such outstanding performers as Bill Hackett, Bill Willis, Tommy James, Gene Fekete and others who had been freshman under Heisler the previous year.

In March, 1942, Fritz was commissioned an ensign in the Navy. He coached at DePauw University in 1943 where he was stationed with the Navy's V-5 Cadet Unit. Heisler joined the Browns in January, 1946, following his discharge from the Navy as a full lieutenant.

Heisler is married and the father of four children. The Heislars reside in Aurora.

EDWARD F. ULINSKI, Tackle Coach

Ed Ulinski was an outstanding guard with the Cleveland Browns through their four championship seasons in the All-America Conference and in 1954 became the first Browns' player to rejoin the team in a coaching capacity.

There was little hesitation on the part of Coach Paul Brown when a vacancy developed on his staff in January of 1954. Less than twenty-four hours after Weeb Ewbank resigned from the Browns' staff to become head coach of the Baltimore Colts, Brown announced the appointment of Ulinski. An exceptional blocker and keen student of the line play, Ulinski was considered one of the most outstanding linemen ever to play for the Browns and Coach Brown had always looked forward to the day Ed would return to the organization as a coach.

During his years with the Browns, Ulinski had demonstrated the distinguishing qualities that make a good teacher.

Ulinski was born in Pittsburgh and played high school football at Ambridge (Pa.) High School for three years, captaining his team in his senior year. He was an All-Country choice in his junior and senior seasons.

At Marshall College, Ulinski was a three-year letterman, alternating between three positions—end, blocking back, and guard. He was named to the All-West Virginia teams in 1940 and 1941, and gained Little All-America mention in his last season.

He entered military service May 7, 1942, and was released to inactive duty as a captain in the Army Air Force four years later. He played two seasons of football, for the Second Air Force in 1944, and the Fourth Air Force in 1945.

Ulinski retired from professional football at the close of the 1949 season to enter coaching as an assistant to Dick Gallagher at Santa Clara University. When Santa Clara dropped football, he joined the Purdue University staff for one season.

Ulinski is married and makes his home in Shaker Heights, Ohio. The Ulinskis have one daughter.
